WHO ARE WE?

NIHLA is a partnership of Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander health and wellbeing organisations, whose purpose is to drive systemic and structural transformation of mainstream government systems, including advancing the human rights of Indigenous peoples and addressing institutional racism in alignment with the National Agreement on Closing the Gap, the National Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander Health Workforce Strategic Framework. We have expertise across policy, service delivery, workforce, research, healing, mental health, aged care and disability, and social, cultural and emotional wellbeing, with a capacity to elevate clinical expertise when necessary. We advocate to governments for genuine engagement and partnership on the development and implementation policy and programs that contribute to improved and equitable health and life outcomes.

Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander health is viewed in a holistic context that recognises not only physical health and wellbeing but also the social, emotional and cultural wellbeing of individuals, families and communities throughout the entire life course (NATSHP 2021-2031).

Foundations to a Healthy Life

OUR OBJECTIVES'

- Eliminate Racism within health and aged care systems (to improve health and wellbeing outcomes).
- Assert systemic and structural reforms through the implementation of the Priority Reforms that underpinned the National Agreement on Closing the Gap.
- Assert self-determination and Indigenous peoples right to be actively involved in developing and determining health, housing and other economic and social programs affecting them.
- Assert support for and investment in community-led solutions.
- Lead collective decision-making in national health policy
- Assert investment and prioritisation in the determinants of health (socioeconomic, cultural, and environmental conditions that impact on health and wellbeing).
- Ensure that Indigenous peoples' free, prior, and informed consent before adopting and implementing legislative or administrative measure that affect them (UNDRIP Article 19).

OUR PURPOSE

To drive systemic and structural transformation of mainstream health systems.

Empower Indigenous communities to exercise their right to self-determination (UNDRIP Article 3), enabling them to lead and make informed decisions about their bodies, their health and the healthcare systems that serve them.

Build and strengthen partnerships with governments, healthcare providers, and other stakeholders to collaboratively address health disparities and improve health outcomes for Indigenous peoples.

Support the self-determination of Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander community-controlled organisations.

Advocate for the recognition and protection of the health rights of Indigenous peoples as outlined in the UNDRIP and CRPD, ensuring access to culturally appropriate, inclusive and equitable healthcare services.

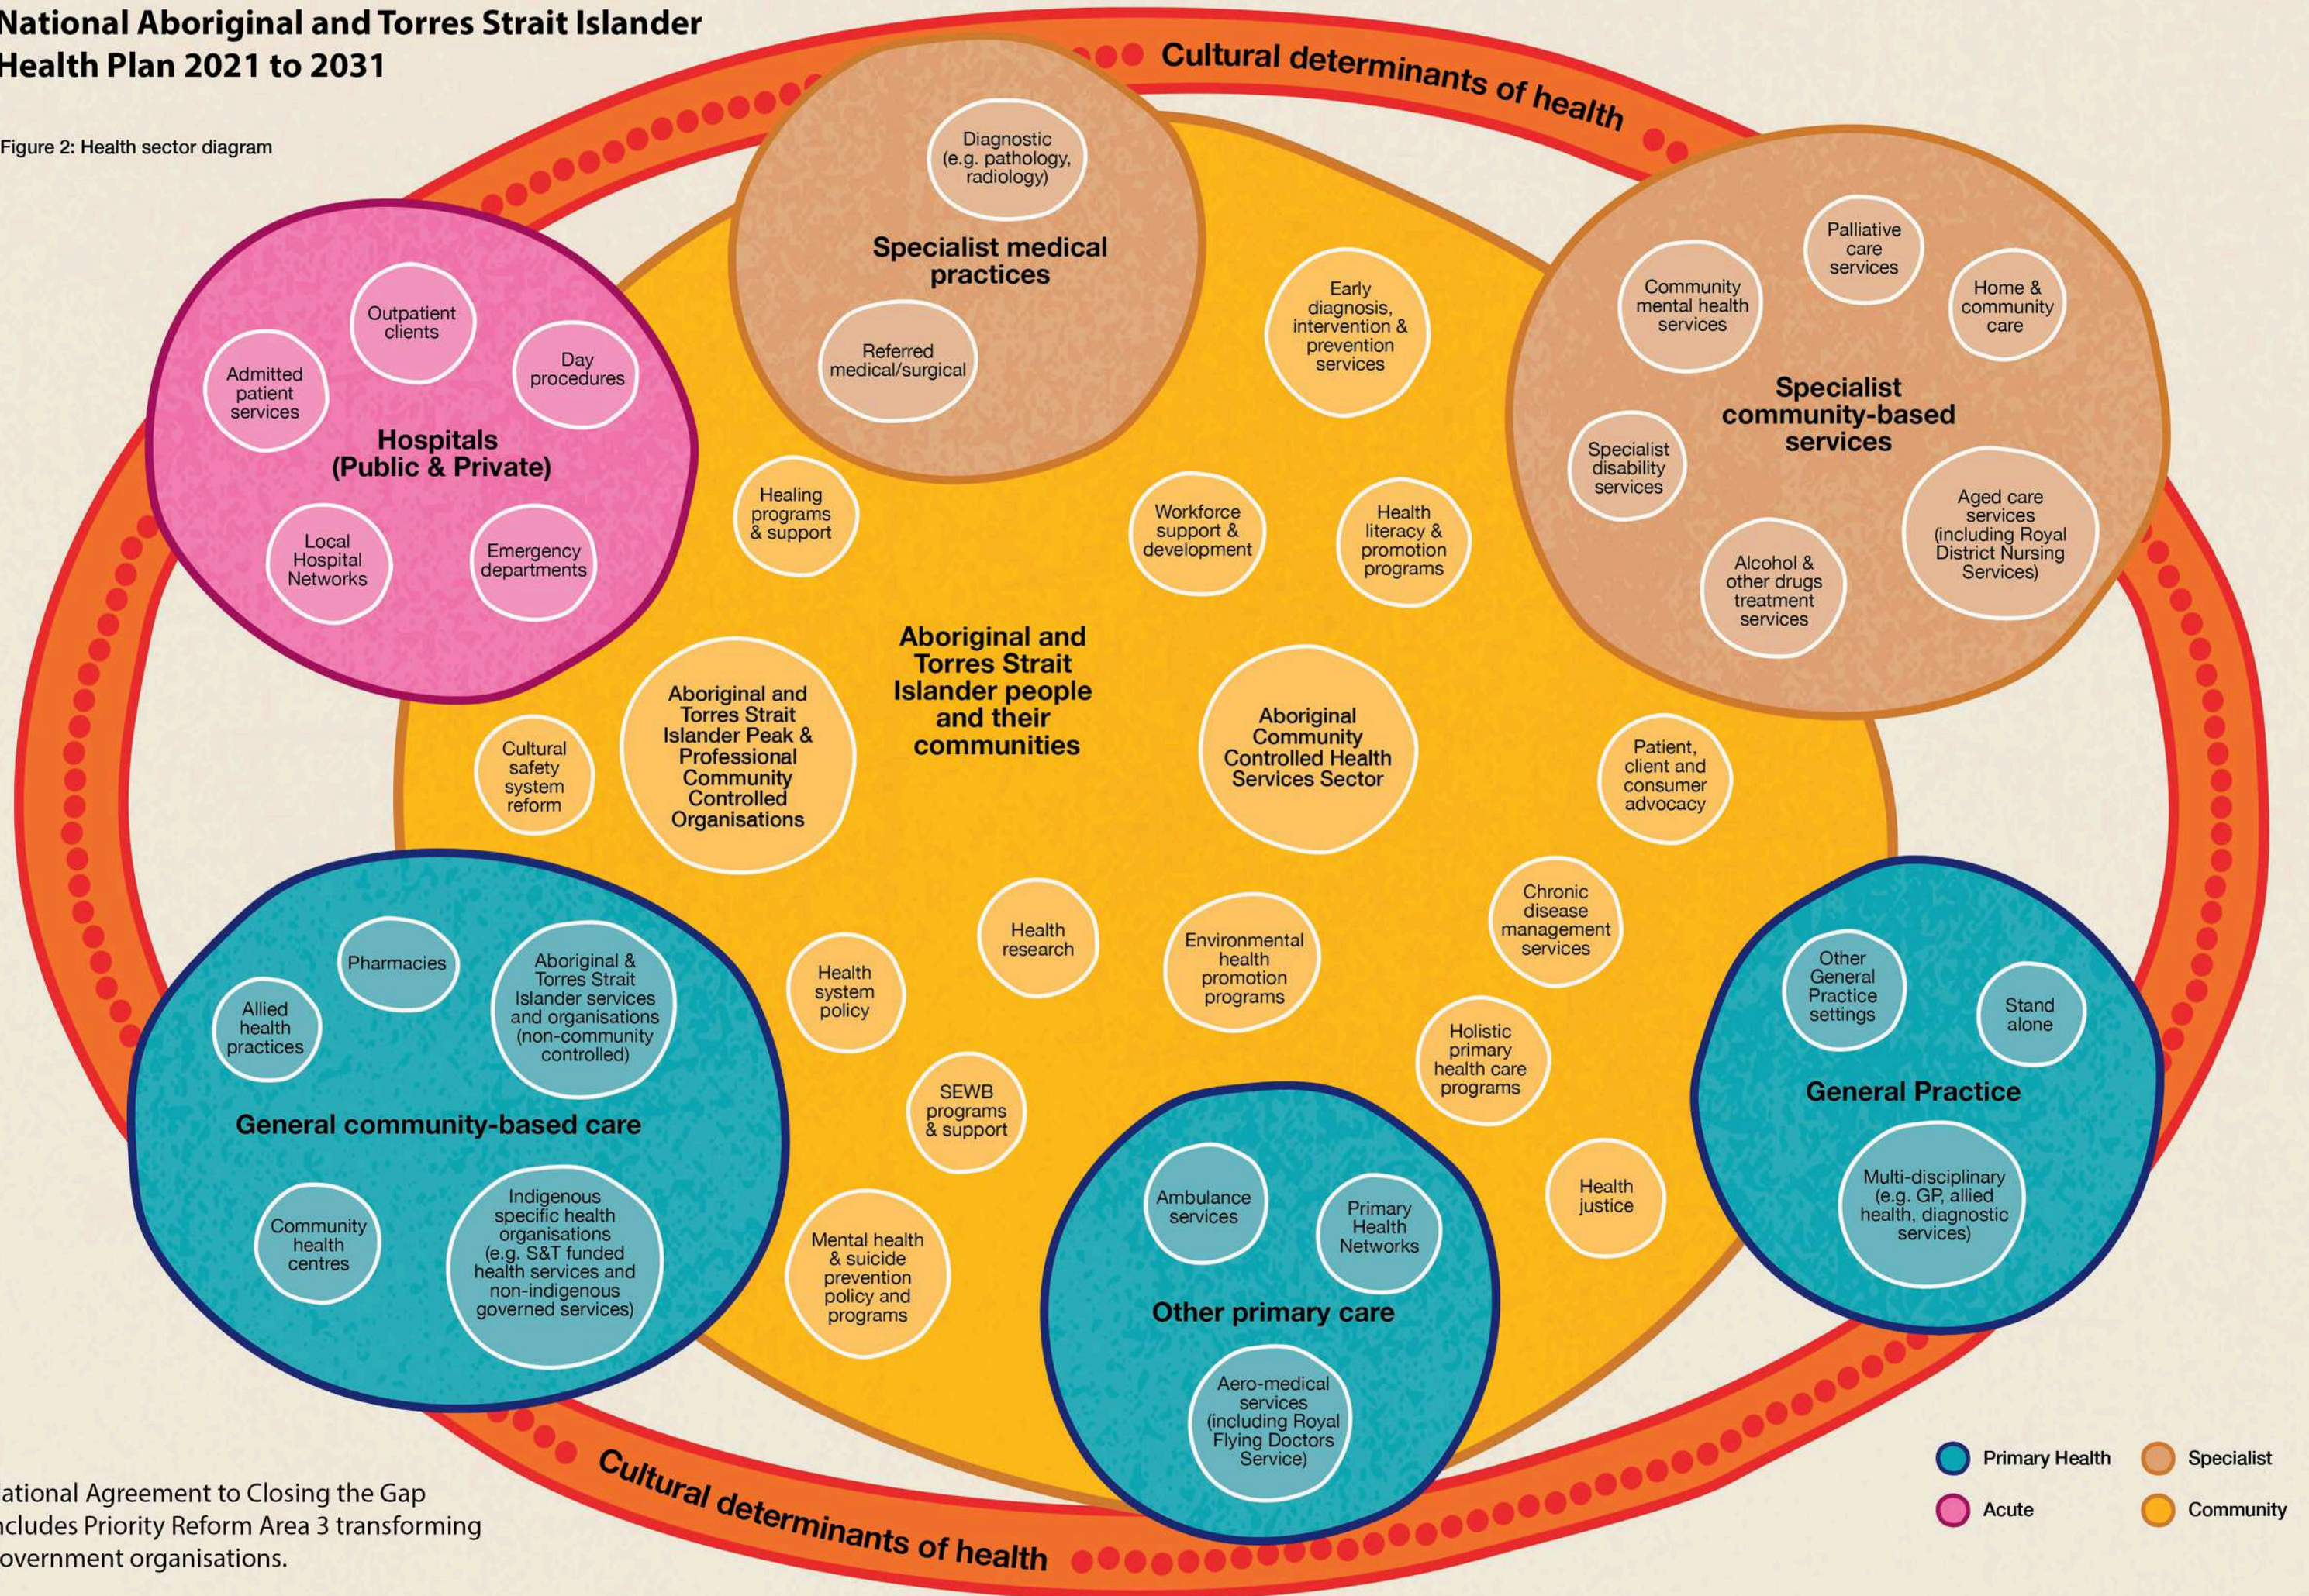

Advance the health and well-being of Indigenous peoples in Australia, guided by the principles and priorities of the United Nations Declaration on the Rights of Indigenous Peoples (UNDRIP) and other relevant human rights frameworks such as the Convention on the Rights of Persons with Disabilities (CRPD).
